

NOW COUNSEL FOR BRANDEIS

George W. Anderson of Boston Is to Represent Him

AUSTEN G. FOX THE COMMITTEE

Senate Committee to Expedite Hearings on the Supreme Court Nomination

Washington, Feb. 17.—The Senate committee investigating the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston to the supreme court bench yesterday engaged Austen G. Fox of New York as counsel for those opposed to Mr. Brandeis and G. W. Anderson, United States attorney at Boston, as counsel for Mr. Brandeis and his supporters.

In a protracted executive session the committee decided that the investigation had broadened out to such proportions that counsel were required for the interests of both sides.

Mr. Brandeis's participation, it was announced, does not conflict with his position as United States attorney at Boston.

After the executive session, Senator Fletcher, acting chairman, announced that Mr. Fox, a New York attorney, had come to Washington in the employment of President Lowell of Harvard university and 50 members of the Boston bar opposed to the confirmation of Mr. Brandeis and would arrange the presentation of the testimony so as to save the time of the committee. The committee was willing to have that done, and it was arranged that Mr. Anderson would act

GALL STONES ELIMINATED

Nine years ago while under treatment of my physician, he advised me that it would be necessary to perform an operation for gall stones, or I would never get well. Am glad to say that I have never had a return of this trouble and would gladly recommend Swamp-Root to anyone so troubled.

Yours truly,

for the committee to see that Mr. Brandeis's side was developed. He said it was understood both lawyers would serve without compensation.

Mr. Anderson said he wanted to explain that he did not appear for Mr. Brandeis or his friends, but for the committee and that he had some personal knowledge of the case, particularly so because he had been United States attorney at Boston.

Sidney W. Winslow, president of the United States Shoe Machinery company, then resumed the stand for cross examination by Mr. Anderson.

The first question was whether suits were not now pending in Boston and St. Louis to test the validity of the much discussed tying clause in the company's lease of its machines. Mr. Winslow protested but finally stated the nature of the suits.

In his testimony before the committee Tuesday, Mr. Winslow charged Mr. Brandeis with unprofessional conduct and "conduct not becoming an honorable gentleman" because after severing his connection with the United Shoe Machinery company he, at the instance of new clients, attacked as "illegal and criminal" the very acts and system of business which he assisted to create and which he advised were legal.

Mr. Anderson tried to show that Mr. Brandeis left Mr. Winslow's company because he disapproved of its policy. Mr. Winslow insisted that he knew of no such disapproval.

TILLMAN THINKS WILSON INTOXICATED BY CHEERS

"I Do Not Want the World's Biggest Navy," Senator Tillman Adds.

Washington, Feb. 17.—"I am not in favor of the greatest navy in the world," Chairman Tillman of the Senate naval affairs committee said on the floor of the Senate yesterday. "I can't believe the president spoke coolly or in good judgment when he made that statement. 'I am a public speaker and I know we get intoxicated when the people hurrah and shout.'"

"We couldn't compete with England, the president knows that. It is vital for her to have the biggest navy to keep from starving."

"I do favor the best trained officers and most efficient ships."

"Probably that is what the president really wants."

Mr. Tillman announced he would introduce additions to his armor plate bill, providing for a government munitions factory, and making all money appropriated immediately available, so that plans for the factory might be drafted without delay.

Secretary Daniels had requested him to enter the munitions factory amendment, he said.

ORPET BASKING IN SPOTLIGHT

Once a Reporter, He Hopes "Story Is Played Up"

SUICIDE WILL BE HIS DEFENSE

Marian Lambert, Cast Aside, Took Poison, His Story

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 17.—William H. Orpet, University of Wisconsin student, former newspaper reporter and now in jail charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, was more interested yesterday in how the newspapers were "playing up" his case than in his own predicament.

"I'd rather be on your end of the case than mine," Orpet told a group of reporters, as they stood around the youth in the office of the sheriff.

"How are they playing it?" he asked. "Say, I'd like to see the Madison, Wis., papers. Do you know what they're doing with the story up there? Wonder if The Cardinal (the university daily) is printing much about it?"

Some of the reporters had worked with Orpet last summer in covering the Eastland tragedy.

"That was a big story," said Orpet. "I wish I was king on it again. Is my story getting as much play as that did?"

Orpet smiled whimsically when the reporters asked him if he'd like to write his own story.

When Orpet was taken to the sheriff's office, in company with Leslie P. Hanna, one of his counsel, he was warned by Hanna not to talk about any of the details of his case. Asked if he had made a statement credited to him Tuesday, admitting he had bought an empty bottle at Madison, Wis., the day before he left to keep his tryst with Marian, Orpet replied:

"The only statement I have made, and the only one I will make, is that I am innocent."

"A lot of prisoners in the jail sang and yelled most of last night," Orpet said in explanation of his tired appearance. "I'm getting good care at the jail. It's a pretty good box 'inghouse'."

J. A. Wikerson, former United States district attorney, who will be chief of Orpet's counsel, yesterday outlined the principal points of Orpet's defense.

"We will seek to prove that Orpet did not buy an empty bottle at Madison Tuesday," he said. "It will be established that Marian deceived him as to her condition. We will show beyond a doubt that the conflicting statements Orpet has made were drawn from him under brutal third degree methods. We will show that the 'alibi' letter he wrote from Madison was merely to keep the news of his visit to Lake Forest from Marian's parents."

A new arrest has been made in the case. Charles W. Hassinger, a drug clerk of Madison, Wis., who sold the phial to Orpet the night of the student's meeting with Miss Lambert, was charged with selling quantities of drug to Orpet to be used for illegal purposes. The alleged act dates back to last summer. The charge is believed to have been lodged against Hassinger so that he will be held as a material witness in the death of the high school girl.

On this phial—an innocent, empty two-ounce bottle that Orpet is alleged to have purchased just before his secret journey to Lake Forest to keep his tryst—hinges the whole structure of circumstantial evidence that the state has built up against Orpet. The state is prepared to attempt to prove that Orpet placed the poison in the bottle and pressed it against the girl's lips, forcing her to swallow the fatal draught.

The state's theory has been that Orpet gave the girl cyanide of potassium on the pretense that it was medicine to relieve her condition. It is the contention of the defense that if Miss Lambert knew she needed no such medicine it is unreasonable to believe Orpet could have persuaded her to take the fatal draught.

It has been intimated by the state that although Miss Lambert's condition was not such as to cause alarm, young Orpet was not informed of this and went to the tryst under a misapprehension. It was contended that the girl used her condition as a club over the youth's head in a final attempt to persuade him to marry her.

"If Orpet is ever indicted and brought to trial, we will ask for a change of venue," said Mr. Hanna of Orpet's counsel. "The boy could never get a fair trial in this county after the publicity the case has had."

The Lake county coroner, in view of the many kinds of poison which have been unearthed in the investigation of the elder Orpet's home, sent the organs of the dead girl to a laboratory for further analysis.

CARRANZA IS ON VERGE OF FALL. CAPITAL HEARS

De Facto Government Is Toppling, So Washington Is Advised.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Information, said to be authentic, reached government officials yesterday to the effect that the Carranza administration in Mexico is in desperate shape. The information, semi-official, is contained in mail advices.

"The Carranza government," one message reads, "is crumbling fast. It is already gone. In fact, it is almost incredible of belief how much ground Carranza has lost in the last 60 days. The whole Carranza structure of government is disintegrating."

Many of Carranza's consular officers and interior officials, the letter says, have received their salaries only at irregular intervals. At least three consuls in American border cities are far in arrears in their office rent and expenses, according to the letter.

War and state department officials yesterday refused absolutely to discuss the situation. It has stated, on unquestioned authority, however, that "something will be popping down the border way before long."

The information before the government contains the prophecy that Mexico is seething with threatened uprisings that need only the influence of a strong leadership to touch them off into a new revolution that would send the Carranza government into oblivion."

BRITISH FOOD PRICES SHOW A SLIGHT INCREASE

Living Twice as High Now—Flour and Bread Rise About Six Per Cent in January.

London, Feb. 17.—According to statistics published yesterday by the British board of trade, the retail prices of food in the United Kingdom advanced on the average of about 1½ per cent in January. Flour and bread increased in price about six per cent.

Taking the country as a whole and making allowances for the relative importance of various articles in the working class household expenditure, the average increase in retail prices of food since the beginning of the war has been 17 per cent.

The board of trade states that in Berlin the general level of prices of certain of the more important articles of food was 53.4 per cent above that of July, 1914.

In Vienna, it is declared, the general level of food prices was 112.9 per cent higher than that of July, 1914.

Cases Go Over.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 17.—The perjury complaints against Mrs. Bessie Spellman and Miss May G. Bailey, witnesses for Henry Spellman, one of the colored defendants in the recent May murder trial, were called for trial in the sixth district court yesterday and were continued two weeks. The cases will probably be presented directly to the March term of the grand jury.

LITTLE PIMPLES ON FACE, NECK

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"One night before retiring I was troubled with an itching and in the morning I found that my face was all broken out with little pimples, and then they came on my neck and hands. The pimples became scaly and my skin was so sore that I had to bathe it with cold water to keep the pain down, and I scratched and my face became erupted. I was so red and sore I was ashamed to go outdoors at all. It lasted about three months."

"I tried—and to no purpose. A friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I did, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one-half a box of Cuticura Ointment I regained my complexion, and was completely healed."

MYSTERY OF "LOST LEGION" IS TO-DAY TALK OF ENGLAND

What Befell Fifth Norfolks, 260 of the "King's Own," Who Charged Into Forest at Anafarta and Were Never Heard of Again?

London, Feb. 17.—"Nothing more was ever heard of them. They charged into the forest and were lost to sight and sound. Not one of them ever came back."

—Sir Ian Hamilton's report.

It is the talk of England, the greatest mystery of the war, the charge of the fifth Norfolk, the king's own servants, at Anafarta. The story of how these 260 "ardent souls" charged on through the village of Anafarta and vanished into the "forest of death" beyond, is history that some day may take its place beside that of the immortal tale of Balaklava.

The "Lost Legion" it is called to-day, but until the war is over the fate of the men who went to battle from the king's Sandringham estates cannot be told. The king personally had instituted every possible inquiry. The American embassy in Constantinople has asked the Turkish government. The forest through which the "Lost Legion" swept on in Gallipoli has been searched time and time again.

There have been found no bodies, no graves, no sign, except two small pocket-books, the property of Capt. William Beck, who commanded the legion. Capt. Beck is missing with all of his command.

Meantime, scores of cottage homes in the royal Sandringham estates of West Norfolk are in mourning. Wives, sweethearts and mothers are wearing crepe, but despite all this there is ever the hope that some day the boys will come marching home.

"Perhaps they are prisoners of the Turks; perhaps they weren't killed at all, and perhaps—it's the hope against hope of the women of West Norfolk."

The "Lost Legion" received its baptism of fire before it set foot on Turkish soil. It arrived off Sulva bay Aug. 10, aboard the palatial Aquitania from England. Turkish machine guns and artillery ploughed the water about them as they were being transported to shore, where they landed safely and dug themselves in. Two days later the men were ordered to clear the Turks from Anafarta.

Col. Beauchamp was at their head with Capt. Beck. The attack developed rapidly. Enfiladed by Turkish fire, many of them dropped wounded or dead, but the others swept on through the village and into oblivion.

The blaze was checked by firemen with small loss.

Health Commissioner Robertson said the fire was admittedly strange, considering the fact that the laboratory assistants were engaged in examining the poisons found in Crones' room.

A floor map of the city hall was found, the police say, among the papers in Crones' room, together with floor plans of the federal building and several skyscrapers.

STRANGE FIRE IS FOUND NEAR POISON EVIDENCE

Chicago Authorities Investigate Blaze Close to Chemical Laboratory.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—A mysterious fire, evidently of incendiary origin, was discovered early yesterday in the city hall near the chemical laboratory in which poisons found in the room of Jean Crones, alleged principal in the anarchists' soup plot, are being analyzed.

A quart bottle containing oil was found in the cloakroom on the seventh floor of the building near the laboratory. Flames were licking their way up the wall of the cloakroom when discovered by Dr. R. M. Phillips, on duty in the chemical laboratory in the early morning.

The blaze was checked by firemen with small loss.

Health Commissioner Robertson said the fire was admittedly strange, considering the fact that the laboratory assistants were engaged in examining the poisons found in Crones' room.

A floor map of the city hall was found, the police say, among the papers in Crones' room, together with floor plans of the federal building and several skyscrapers.
